27th and 28th July, 2019

8.30AM to 6.30PM (both days)

Venue

Aatman bungalow, 108 Priyanka park, Shrinath nagar lane no.4, Near Laukik residency, Veerbhadra nagar road, Baner, Pune 411045. Maharashtra.

Aatman is about 5 minutes drive from Mumbai-Bangalore highway and a 5 minutes walk from Balewadi highstreet in Pune.

About

The workshop will orient the participants to Permaculture and Permaculture Design. It will introduce the participant to what Permaculture is and isn't by guiding the participants gently towards the ethics and principles of Permaculture (please refer the syllabus).

The workshop is structured to build the foundation for the participant to study further and to explore Permaculture through self-study or by attending courses suitable to his/her needs. It also includes themes of Permaculture design which will be discussed in detail with a new perspective which is seldom included in a typical introduction course.

The Permaculture Design Foundation-I is an information-heavy workshop, and also has interesting activities and assignments. It is a pre-requisite to attend any of the courses conducted by Jyoti and will also serve as a strong base for the participants to choose from many available, other long courses like the PDC and learn from other instructors.

Who should attend

The workshop introduces Permaculture as a whole-systems approach to design regenerative human habitats. Anyone, irrespective of occupation, age and background will benefit and is encouraged to attend.

Syllabus

1. Human systems and Permaculture ethics
2. Principles of Natural systems and Permaculture design
3. Themes of Permaculture design
4. Trees, water and soil – their interactions
5. Guidance for further study – self and through courses/workshops

Activities and assignments will include Building a Connections Mind Map, A-frame – Construction and use

About the instructor

Jyoti has studied permaculture under the most experienced teachers in India and abroad, Rico Zook, Jeremiah Kidd, Steve McGrane, Clea Chandmal, Dwarkanath, Narsanna Koppula and Geoff Lawton included. She brings her experience of designing and building her own beautiful homestead 'Chaitraban' as well as that of many a client's projects to her teaching. She seeks to impart real-world experience to her students.
